9/11 Hard Core

A recent headline from the New York Post reads:
Chilling new video captures suspected Saudi spy filming US Capitol, National Monument before 9/11

In the video Omar al-Bayoumi, an accused Saudi intelligence operative with close ties to two of the 9/11 hijackers, can be seen casing the US Capitol building and the Washington Monument while exclaiming O beloved, esteemed brothers, a greeting to you from Omar al-Bayoumi. The video, which was discovered during a British raid on Al-Bayoumi's UK residence in 2001, provides compelling evidence that Saudi intelligence provided essential help to terrorist operatives in the United States.

<https://nypost.com/2024/06/23/us-news/video-shows-suspected-saudi-spy-filming-us-capitol-national-monument-before-9-11/>

This notion is explicitly articulated in a recent court filing:

“The Saudi government secretly funded a network of individual operatives with extensive ties to terrorism ... Saudi Arabia also funded and directed several ostensible ‘charities’ as part of the enterprise.”

But the Saudi involvement is by no means the entire plot. In fact, from day one an important clue emerged that highly placed renegades in the American government and military played a ranking role in orchestrating the mass murder of nearly 3,000 Americans.

Let's start with a recap of events that unfolded in Colony Beach Resort on Longboat Key in Sarasota, FL where President Bush spent the night. The next day, September 11th, he was scheduled to appear at Emma Booker Elementary School.

Key Colony Beach

The level of security was extraordinary. According to the Sarasota Herald Tribune, "At the Colony, the Secret Service was getting everything secured for when the president arrived on Sept. 10th. That included snipers and surface-to-air missiles on the roof and the Coast Guard patrolling just offshore.”

<https://s3.amazonaws.com/911timeline/2002/sarasotaheraldtribune091002.html>

While the president was sleeping the Sarasota police received an ominous warning from Zainlabdeen Omer, a Sudanese national residing in Sarasota, that a friend of his named Gandi (or Ghandi) who made violent threats against President Bush unexpectedly showed up in Sarasota.

Here is a copy of the police report:

The Sarasota police in turn notified the Secret Service. Notice the time: 0407 hundred hours. The intrigue continues. According to an article published in the Long Boat Observer a van occupied by Middle Eastern men tried to enter the Colony Beach Resort claiming to be a television news crew who had a scheduled interview with the president. This was witnessed by a local fire captain, Longboat Key Fire Marshall Carroll Mooneyhan. The Secret Service turned them away.

<https://web.archive.org/web/20060613072914/http://www.longboatobserver.com/showarticle.asp?ai=1874>

What makes this so disturbing is that the same modus operandi was used half way across the world in Afghanistan just TWO DAYS EARLIER to successfully assassinate Osama bin Laden's biggest foe, Afghan Northern Alliance leader Shah Massoud. The rebel leader granted an interview to an Arab TV crew during which the camera exploded killing him and one of the suicide bombers disguised as a journalist. Massoud died from his severe injuries in a helicopter while en route to a hospital for emergency treatment.

<https://www.nytimes.com/2001/09/10/world/taliban-foe-hurt-and-aide-killed-by-bomb.html>

Meanwhile at Emma Booker Elementary School, President Bush was in a classroom telling stories to small children when White House Chief of Staff Andrew Card whispered the news of a second World Trade Center (WTC) building strike in his ear. After a few seconds of hesitation, the president withdrew to make further inquiries, draft a statement and hastily head for Air Force One.

It was then that the most sinister event occurred: An archived message from CBS News tersely states:

“A Secret Service page at 10:32 a.m. warned: "ANONYMOUS CALL TO JOC [Joint Operations Center] REPORTING ANGEL IS TARGET.” It turns out that “Angel” was the secret codeword for Air Force One.

https://web.archive.org/web/20100409111321/https://www.cbsnews.com/8301-504383\_162-5770280-504383.html/

Foreign Penetration Agents?

“Angel is target.” Before dissecting the obvious significance of this phrase let’s put it into perspective. First there is the middle-of-the-night threat to President Bush, rapidly followed by another assassination attempt by an apparently bogus television crew ala Shah Massoud, the two WTC buildings are leveled along with the attack on the Pentagon. And now for the bad news. Just when President Bush and his entourage are spirited aboard Air Force One the “Angel is target” threat emerges. This is the quintessential bad day.

A September 20, 2001 World Net Daily article delved into this matter in more detail:

“‘Air Force One is next,’ read the message received by the U.S. Secret Service at 9 a.m. Sept. 11, after two hijacked planes struck the twin towers of the World Trade Center in New York.”

The article continues in bone-chilling fashion:

“The terrorists' message threatening Air Force One was transmitted in that day's top-secret White House code words. As the clock ticked away, the Secret Service reached a frightening conclusion: The terrorists had obtained the White House code and a whole set of top-secret signals.”

So “Angel” was codeword for Air Force One – but only for one day!

Then there is this:

“The terrorists had also obtained the code groups of the National Security Agency and were able to penetrate the NSA's state-of-the-art electronic surveillance systems. Indeed, they seemed to have at their disposal an electronic capability that was more sophisticated than that of the NSA(!!!)”

<https://www.wnd.com/2001/09/10959/> (Emphasis added.)

Clearly some individual, or team, with access to super-highly classified secrets was involved. With this perspective let's examine some of the catastrophic events from that tragic day. The government's version is obfuscated by layers of deceit and duplicity. To illustrate let's start with WTC Building 7 that collapsed into its own footprint around 5:20 PM. Even though no commercial jet flew into WTC 7 eyewitness accounts strongly evince explosions occurred immediately before and during WTC 7's destruction. These eyewitnesses include but are not limited to:

Craig Bartmer, former NYPD officer: “[A]ll of a sudden...I looked up, and... [t]he thing started peeling in on itself.... I started running...and the whole time you’re hearing “thume, thume, thume, thume, thume.” I think I know an explosion when I hear it.”

First-year NYU medical student identified as Darryl: “[W]e heard this sound that sounded like a clap of thunder.... [T]urned around — we were shocked.... [I]t looked like there was a shockwave ripping through the building and the windows all busted out.... [A]bout a second later the bottom floor caved out and the building followed after that.”

Kevin McPadden, unaffiliated, volunteer first responder: “And then it was like another two, three seconds, you heard explosions. Like BA-BOOOOOM! And it’s like a distinct sound...BA-BOOOOOM! And you felt a rumble in the ground, like, almost like you wanted to grab onto something.”

Hugo Bachmann, ETH Professor Emeritus of Structural Engineering and Construction:

"In my opinion, the WTC 7 building was most likely blown up professionally."

Jörg Schneider, also ETH professor emeritus of structural engineering: "the WTC 7 building was most likely blown up"

WTC7 Collapse

Incidentally when Secretary of Defense, Donald Rumsfeld, was asked about WTC 7, the building that came down without any plane crashing into it, his answer was, “HAVE NO IDEA. I NEVER HEARD THAT (!!!)”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20140209202358/https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xKbSMD0ZGY4>

Tom Sullivan Demolition Expert Licensed by NYFD to handle explosives says:

“I knew from day one that this was a controlled event. ...

“We were told by the NIST [National Institute of Standards and Technology] report that fire caused one column to fail and from that point we had a global collapse of the building. I don't see how this could actually happen in real life.”

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=u5lgqJXyLbg>

But you would never know that from the government's written account specifically from the NIST report:

33. Did investigators consider the possibility that an explosion caused or contributed to the collapse of WTC 7?

“Yes, this possibility was investigated carefully. NIST concluded that blast events inside the building did not occur and found no evidence supporting the existence of a blast event.

“In addition, no blast sounds were heard on the audio tracks of video recordings during the collapse of WTC 7 or reported by witnesses.”

<https://www.nist.gov/world-trade-center-investigation/study-faqs/wtc-7-investigation>

Let’s compare WTC 7 to WTC 5 which burned for over eight hours on September 11th and remained standing. In fact WTC 5 is a prime example of how steel-framed high-rises survive raging large fires completely intact.

How many people are aware of numerous examples from all over the world of steel-framed buildings burning fiercely for many hours over multiple storeys without collapsing?

9/11 Comparison Fires

October 2004 Venezuela Fire duration: 17 hours		February 2005 Spain Fire duration: 20+ hours
---	---	---	---

“Both of the above buildings were of inferior build quality to the WTC, yet they burned hotter & far longer than the twin towers & WTC 7 AND REMAINED STANDING.”

https://web.archive.org/web/20060315213803/http://www.whatreallyhappened.com/wtc\_fire.htm

It bears repeating: Fires have never caused the total collapse of a steel-framed high-rise before or since 9/11.

Question!!

Did the world witness an unprecedented event three separate times on September 11, 2001 to wit the collapse of WTC7 in addition to WTC1 and WTC2 solely due to fire?

How many people are aware that WTC1 caught fire in 1975?

The fire broke out on the 11th floor with flames spreading vertically to ignite more fires from the 9th floor to the 19th. 150 firefighters arrived at the scene; before the conflagration was finally extinguished 28 firefighters sustained injuries from the intense heat and smoke. According to Captain Harold Kull of Engine Co. 6, "It was like fighting a blow torch."

<https://www.transcend.org/tms/2020/03/a-record-of-major-high-rise-fires-worldwide/>

Although the fire lasted over 3 hours, it caused no serious structural damage. Embedded trusses not only survived the fires but supported the building for decades after the destructive fires were extinguished.

https://web.archive.org/web/20070409053406/http://bellacio.org/en/article.php3?id\_article=10613 (Emphasis added.)

There are significant telltale signs that controlled demolitions were responsible for the destruction of WTC1 and WTC2.

High-velocity bursts of debris, or “squibs” - indicative of controlled demolition - were ejected from point-like sources in WTC 1 and WTC 2, as many as 20 to 30 stories below the collapse front.

Examples of demolition squibs.

What is especially striking in the collapse of both towers is the enormous volume of material being ejected early in the collapse, and the quantity of shattered steel thrown out ahead of the dust clouds.

The above image is one of an amazing series of pictures taken by Bill Biggert, a photographer who was reportedly killed by the dust cloud from the WTC-1 collapse. It shows large numbers of 12-foot sections of perimeter columns flying out ahead of the dust cloud in what is very clearly an explosive event. He got very close to the North Tower just before it fell, and captured some amazing pictures of its collapse.

“There were two substations on the 108th floor, the 75th floor and the 40 first floor and the seventh floor. At those eight locations there were four transformers in each substation that weighed over 30,000 lb. The transformers would not explode on their own they were air cooled dry type transformers and yet after the collapse there was no evidence of them being found at the bottom of the towers. I wonder why.”

According to Europhysics news, “NIST also provides no explanation for the midair pulverization of most of the towers’ concrete, the near-total dismemberment of their steel frames, or the ejection of those materials up to 150 meters ...”

Do The Flashes Seen In This WTC-2 Collapse Video Indicate The Detonation Of Cutting Charges?

https://web.archive.org/web/20040604004032/http://www.plaguepuppy.net/public\_html/Flashes/Flashes.htm

The above broadcast video of the WTC-2 [the building on the left] collapse has high enough resolution that, when viewed frame by frame, a series of small bright flashes can be seen during the collapse. Most of them last from for only one frame (1/30 sec.) and appear as bright white point sources emanating from the building. At first these might be taken for video noise, but the fact that they only occur in areas occupied by the South Tower and are bigger than a single pixel argues against this.

Louie Cacchioli, 51, a firefighter assigned to Engine 47 in Harlem:

We were the first ones in the second tower after the plane struck. I was taking firefighters up in the elevator to the 24th floor to get in position to evacuate workers. On the last trip up a bomb went off. We think there was bombs set in the building. I had just asked another firefighter to stay with me, which was a good thing because we were trapped inside the elevator and he had the tools to get out.

<https://people.com/archive/hell-on-earth-vol-56-no-13/>

(Emphasis added.)

On the morning of 9/11 NBC reporter Pat Dawson spoke with Albert Turi FDNY Chief of Safety who said he received word of the possibility of a secondary device, that is another bomb going off. He tried to get his men out as quickly as possible but he said there was another explosion that took place. And then an hour after the first hit there was another explosion that took place. He thinks that there were actually devices that were planted in the building.

According to an article from the LiRo Group, a top-rated Architecture, Engineering and Construction Firm:

“The removal of debris from the collapsed areas requires the safe lifting and maneuvering of very heavy steel beams, often twisted and tangled ... Some beams pulled from the wreckage are still red hot more than 7 weeks after the attack, and it is suspected that temperatures beneath the debris pile are well in excess of 1,000°F.”

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nsw2j-3MCMg>

Previously molten metal was found "flowing like lava" by the FDNY in the basements of all 3 WTC High-rises. Hydrocarbon fires can burn at a maximum temperature of 1,800°F which is about 1,000° short of the beginning melting temperature of steel. Where did the molten metal come from? Why do FEMA and NIST deny its existence?

“Let's go back to your basic premise that there was a pool of molten steel I know of absolutely nobody and no eyewitness who said so.” – John Gross

So there you have it. According to the NIST no one saw any molten metal.

A half-baked farce?

It is an established fact that structural steel from the World Trade Center was cut up and sold for scrap preventing proper forensic investigation of the steel columns. This deliberate destruction of evidence was harshly criticized by professional firefighters. A trade magazine, Fire Engineering, in an article titled $ELLING OUT THE INVESTIGATION, went so far as to call the investigation of the WTC fires a “half-baked farce.”

“Fire Engineering has good reason to believe that the “official investigation” blessed by FEMA and run by the American Society of Civil Engineers is a half-baked farce that may already have been commandeered by political forces ...

“Respected members of the fire protection engineering community are beginning to raise red flags, and a resonating theory has emerged: The structural damage from the planes and the explosive ignition of jet fuel in themselves were not enough to bring down the towers.

The article concludes with:

“The destruction and removal of evidence must stop immediately.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20120224074715/http://www.fireengineering.com/articles/print/volume-155/issue-1/departments/editors-opinion/elling-out-the-investigation.html>

(Emphasis added.)

An article published in the Switzerland publication Tages-Anzeiger points out that, “The steel was recycled in Asia. Professor Frederick Mowrer of the Fire Protection Engineering Department at the University of Maryland, who had to investigate the collapse of the WTC buildings together with other US experts, sharply criticized this approach: ‘I find the speed with which important evidence was removed and recycled appalling.’”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20091027061958/http://sc.tagesanzeiger.ch/dyn/news/ausland/663864.html>

In fact the NIST report is riddled with flaws including the specious assertion that high temperatures softened the steel columns and floors. Actually, NIST did conduct tests to determine the temperature of the steel columns in proximity to the fires. The first test, which examined paint deformation on steel samples chosen specifically from the fire zones, showed that less than 2% of the samples had seen temperatures above 250 °C (482 °F). For comparison self-cleaning ovens run for several hours at 900 °F. Does the very thin, one-eighth inch steel soften and buckle? The melting point of steel is around 1,500 °C. or 2,600 °F. Steel can lose strength at temperatures below its melting point but not at self-cleaning oven temperatures.

Despite the NITS temperature studies that revealed the vast majority of steel did not experience temperature of over 250 °C (482 °F), Dr. Hyman Brown from the WTC construction crew, made the spurious claim that the buildings collapsed due to fires at 2000°F melting the steel. He states “What caused the building to collapse is the airplane fuel . . . burning at 2,000°F.”

<https://911truth.org/ul-executive-speaks-out-on-wtc-study/>

Steel is a very effective conductor of heat. Consequently the heat of a serious hot spot on one floor, due to tens of thousands of gallons of burning jet fuel, will rapidly dissipate up and down the columns that pass through that hot spot. This means that the steel columns would soon heat up uniformly. The total mass of steel for each WTC building is hundreds of thousands of tons. Is it really believable that the jet fuel of a single jetliner can heat, say, 200,000 tons of steel uniformly to temperatures as high as the melting point of steel?

An article published in the November 2022 edition of Frontiers of Structural and Civil Engineering sought to determine the “Thermal response of steel framing members in open car park fires.”

<https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s11709-022-0879-0>

Thermal response of steel framing members in open car park fires

The extreme right column portrays the average temperature of steel measured determined during the open car park fires. The average temperature ranges from 309°C to 67°C; none of which come close to the melting temperature of steel which is around 1,500 °C (2500°F).

Internet Posting:

“Using jet fuel to melt steel is an amazing discovery, really. It is also amazing that until now, no one had been able to get it to work, and that proves the terrorists were not stupid people. Iron workers fool with acetylene torches, bottled oxygen, electric arcs from generators, electric furnaces, and other elaborate tricks, but what did these brilliant terrorists use? Jet fuel, costing maybe 80 cents a gallon on the open market.”

NIST's account of the structural failure of the twin towers depends on a computer simulation based on faulty assumptions deliberately chosen to produce the result. This suspicion arose when NIST refused to release the data input used for their computer simulations for expert scrutiny.

According to an article from the New Civil Engineer, "World Trade Center disaster investigators at NIST are refusing to show computer visualizations of the collapse of the Twin Towers despite calls from leading structural and fire engineers."
<https://www.visibility911.org/pdf-nist-response-to-request-for-correction-092707/>

The obvious problem was that steel does not soften or lose significant strength at low temperatures, yet NIST's story depends on the softening or weakening of vast quantities of structural steel. With these concerns in mind Dr. Kevin Ryan, a senior scientist at Underwriters Laboratory, emailed Dr. Frank Gayle the NIST scientist "investigating" the collapse of the WTC buildings. Ryan wrote:

"The summary of the new NIST report seems to ignore your findings, as it suggests that these low temperatures caused exposed bits of the building's steel core to 'soften and buckle'. Additionally, this summary states that the perimeter columns softened, yet your findings make clear that 'most perimeter panels (157 of 160) saw no temperature above 250 °C'. To soften steel for the purposes of forging, normally temperatures need to be above 1100 °C. However, this new summary report suggests that much lower temperatures were be able to not only soften the steel in a matter of minutes, but lead to rapid structural collapse.”

The buildings should have easily withstood the thermal stress caused by pools of burning jet fuel. – Kevin Ryan

As a result of sending that email Dr. Ryan was immediately fired from Underwriters Laboratories.

Searching WTC dust for clues.

<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-3158970/Environmental-scientist-studied-health-effects-9-11-dust-dies-aged-68.html>

Even though the government confiscated the steel beams and sent them overseas for recycling scientists could still search for clues by analyzing the dust collected from the WTC scene. It turns out that highly sophisticated analytical methods can be used to examine WTC dust.

After examining dust particles collected from the WTC grounds physicists from Brigham Young University (BYU) led by Dr. Steven Jones made some startling discoveries.

Using scanning electron microscopy, they found that much of the iron-rich dust was composed of roughly spherical particles very tiny in size. This was an important clue since the presence of metallic microspheres implied that the metals were once molten droplets in which surface tension pulled them into a roughly spherical shape. Afterwards the molten droplets solidified in air on dust particles which were abundant due to massive pulverization.

In 2004 researchers in Savannah Georgia published an article in the Journal of Microscopy and Microanalysis titled World Trade Center Particulate Contamination Signature that identified iron-rich microspheres in WTC dust.

<https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/microscopy-and-microanalysis/article/abs/world-trade-center-particulate-contamination-signature/87528>

In 2005 the United States Geological Survey confirmed the existence of iron-rich microspheres in WTC dust with photographs.

https://pubs.usgs.gov/of/2005/1165/table\_1.html

But the BYU researchers also discovered another curious feature: distinctive red/gray chips that at first seemed to be chips of paint residue. But careful analysis with electron-microprobe, X-ray Fluorescence, X-ray energy dispersive spectroscopy and differential scanning calorimetry, ruled out that possibility and provided an exciting insight: what were originally thought to be chips of paint embedded on WTC dust particles turned out to be a “highly energetic advanced nano-composite material.”

One of the early observations that led them to consider this novel idea was the observation that when the red/gray chips were heated to about 430° C. (806° F.), they ignited, releasing relatively large amounts of energy very fast.

The gray appearing particulates are aluminum while the red particulates are composed of iron. Iron oxide appears in many-sided grains roughly 100 nm across. The iron oxide and aluminum are intimately mixed in the red material.

Iron oxide and aluminum are the ingredients of classic thermite, an incendiary that burns unusually hot at approximately 4500°F, producing aluminum oxide and molten iron.

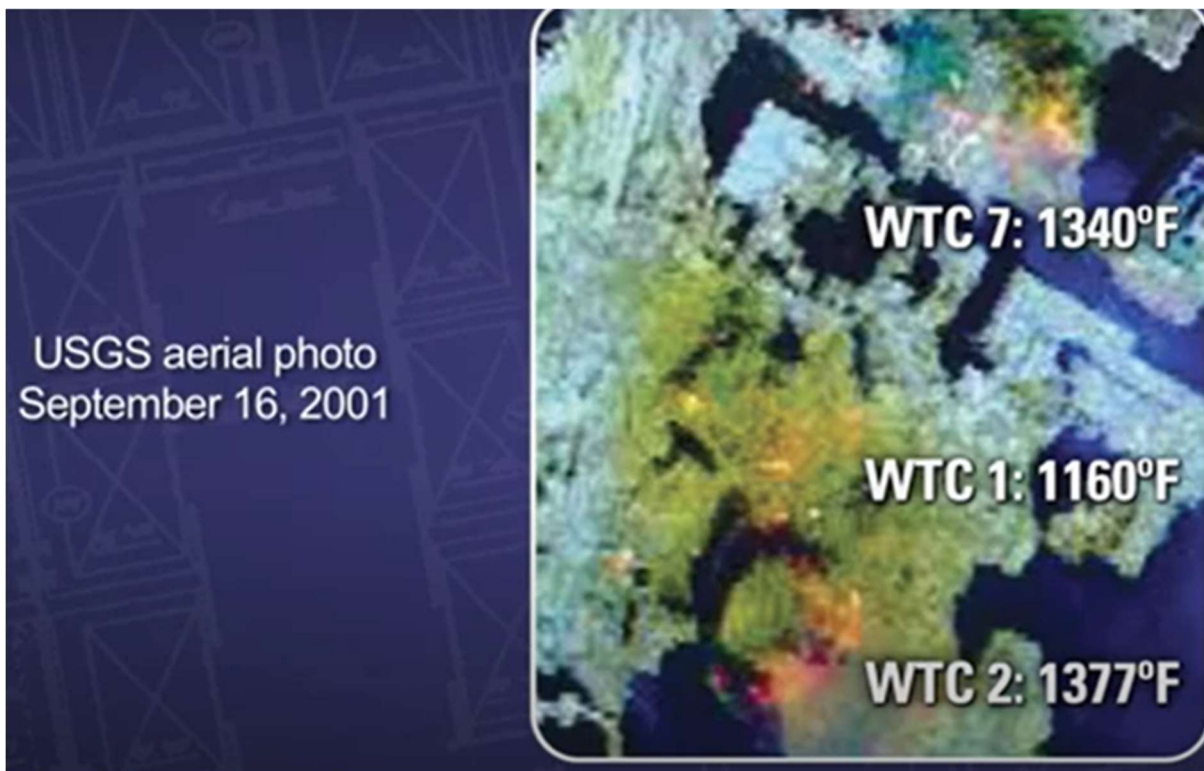

Aluminum (powder) + Iron oxide → Aluminum oxide (white plume) + Molten Iron (yellow-white hot)

The chemical equation is written as:

What happens is that the aluminum snatches oxygen away from iron. It is what chemists call an oxidation/reduction reaction and they can generate immense heat. In this case enough to melt solid iron into a molten state. Thermite contains its own supply of oxygen and so the reaction cannot readily be smothered.

Does this explain the hot, long-lasting subterranean fires accompanied with molten iron that were observed for several months after 9/11?

For months after destruction World Trade Center fires at ground zero could not be put out, despite the several inches of dust covering the entire area after the destruction of the WTC buildings; millions of gallons of water were sprayed onto the debris pile; several rainfall events occurred at ground zero, some heavy; and a chemical fire suppressant called Pyrocool was pumped into the pile.

An article published in the peer-review journal Environment Systems and Decisions titled Environmental anomalies at the World Trade Center: evidence for energetic materials states:

“The characteristics of these un-extinguishable fires have not been adequately explained as the results of a normal structure fire, even one accelerated by jet fuel. Conversely, such fires are better explained given the presence of chemical energetic materials, which provide their own fuel and oxidant and are not deterred by water, dust, or chemical suppressants.”

<https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s10669-008-9182-4>

Using advanced instrumentation, the discovery of thermite residue on WTC dust was a routine matter nonetheless it needs to be independently confirmed since the presence of thermite has immense implications: the three WTC buildings were collapsed with controlled demolition. If so that it opens up a Pandora's box of imponderables.

While working with a team of international collaborators yet another stunning discovery emerged: the thermite discovered on WTC dust particles is not a conventional variety but is a form of super-thermite.

“The low temperature of ignition and the presence of iron oxide grains less than 120 nm show that the material is not conventional thermite (which ignites at temperatures above 900 °C) but very likely a form of super-thermite.”

An article published in MIT Review titled Military Reloads with Nanotech says:

“Researchers can greatly increase the power of weapons by adding materials known as superthermites that combine nanometals such as nanoaluminum with metal oxides such as iron oxide, according to Steven Son, a project leader in the Explosives Science and Technology group at Los Alamos.

The advantage (of using nanometals) is in how fast you can get their energy out.”

<https://www.technologyreview.com/2005/01/21/231710/military-reloads-with-nanotech/>

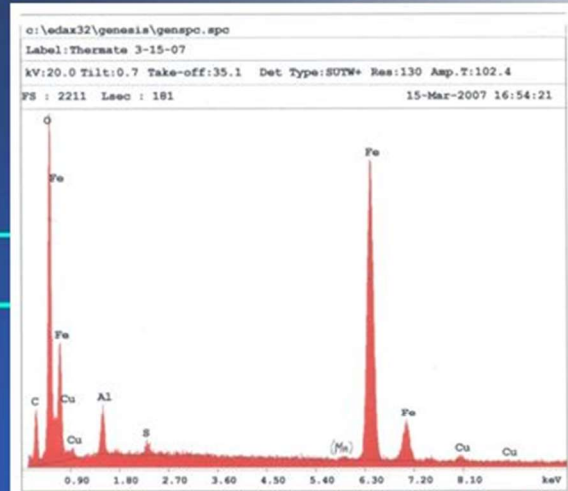

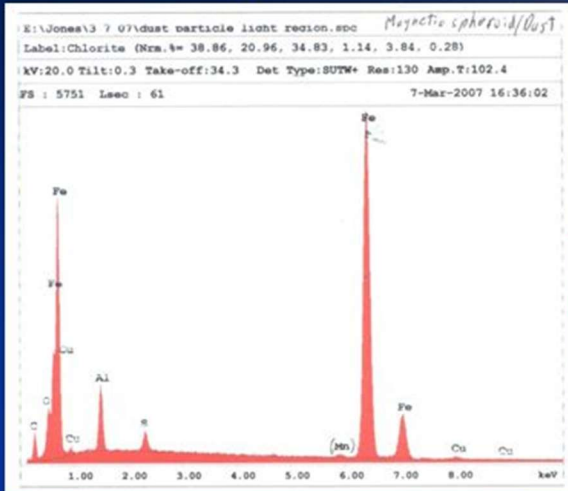

In 2009 – eight long years after the 9/11 attacks – the team of international scientists published their results in a peer-review journal with the title

Active Thermitic Material Discovered in Dust from the 9/11 World Trade Center Catastrophe

“We conclude that the red layer of the red/gray chips we have discovered in the WTC dust is active, unreacted thermitic material, incorporating nanotechnology, and is a highly energetic pyrotechnic or explosive material.”

WHAT GOVERNMENT & MILITARY OFFICIALS HAVE TO SAY

Col. George Nelson

“With all the evidence readily available at the Pentagon crash site, any unbiased rational investigator could only conclude that a Boeing 757 did not fly into the Pentagon as alleged. Similarly, with all the evidence available at the Pennsylvania crash site, it was most doubtful that a passenger airliner caused the obvious hole in the ground and certainly not the Boeing 757 as alleged. ...

“As painful and heartbreaking as was the loss of innocent lives and the lingering health problems of thousands more, a most troublesome and nightmarish probability remains that so many Americans appear to be involved in the most heinous conspiracy in our country's history.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20061102204545/http://patriotsquestion911.com/> (Emphasis added.)

Major Douglass Rokke

Regarding the impact at the Pentagon on 9/11/2001 "When you look at the whole thing, especially the crash site void of airplane parts, the size of the hole left in the building and the fact the projectile's impact penetrated numerous concrete walls, it looks like the work of a missile. And when you look at the damage, it was obviously a missile."

<https://web.archive.org/web/20061102204545/http://patriotsquestion911.com/> (Emphasis added.)

Capt. Russ Wittenberg

“The government story they handed us about 9/11 is total B.S. plain and simple. ... Wittenberg convincingly argued there was absolutely no possibility that Flight 77 could have "descended 7,000 feet in two minutes, all the while performing a steep 270-degree banked turn before crashing into the Pentagon's first floor wall without touching the lawn." ...

Audio Interview 9/16/04: “Regarding Flight 77, which allegedly hit the Pentagon. The airplane could not have flown at those speeds which they said it did without going into what they call a high-speed stall. The airplane won't go that fast if you start pulling those high G maneuvers at those bank angles. ... To expect this alleged airplane to run these maneuvers with a total amateur at the controls is simply ludicrous...

“It's roughly a 100-ton airplane. And an airplane that weighs 100 tons all assembled is still going to have 100 tons of disassembled trash and parts after it hits a building. There was no wreckage from a 757 at the Pentagon. ... The vehicle that hit the Pentagon was not Flight 77. We think, as you may have heard before, it was a cruise missile.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20061102204545/http://patriotsquestion911.com/>

Lt. Col. Karen Kwiatkowski

Beyond this strange absence of airliner debris, there was no sign of the kind of damage to the Pentagon structure one would expect from the impact of a large airliner. This visible evidence or lack thereof may also have been apparent to the secretary of defense, who in an unfortunate slip of the tongue referred to the aircraft that slammed into the Pentagon as a "missile".

Barbara Honegger

White House Policy Analyst and Special Assistant to President Ronald Reagan (1981-83).

“The US military, not al Qaeda, had the sustained access weeks before 9/11 to plant controlled demolition charges throughout the superstructures of WTC 1 and WTC2, and in WTC7, which brought down all three buildings on 9/11.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20061102204545/http://patriotsquation911.com/>

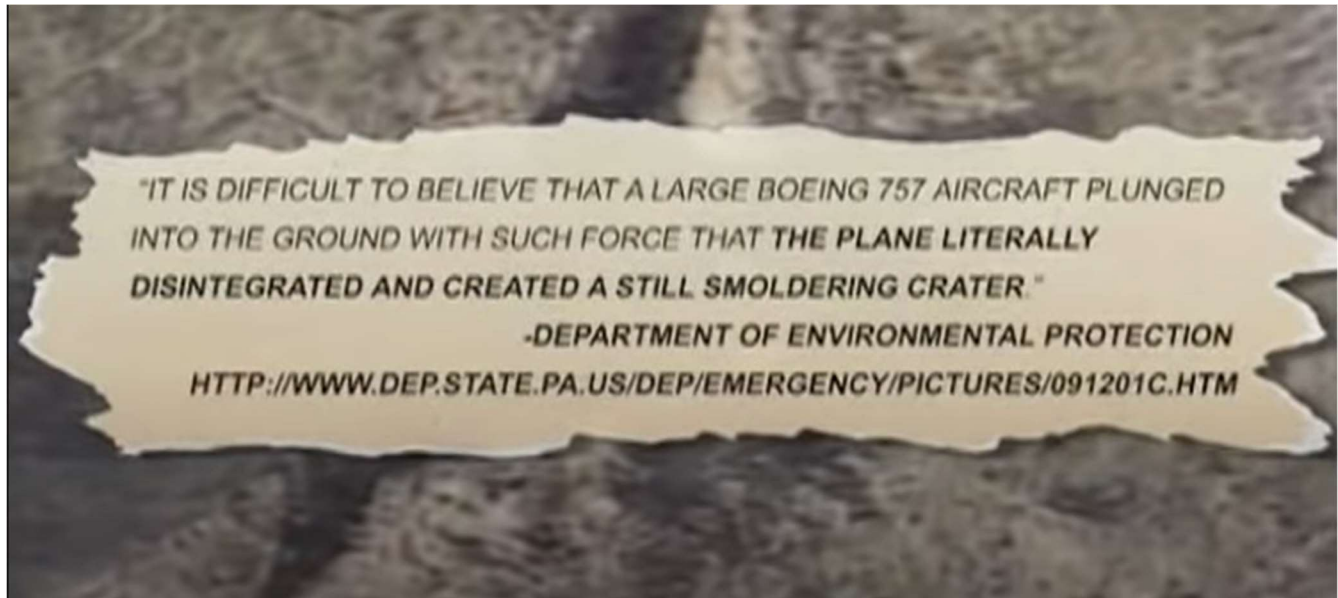

Capt. Gregory Zeigler

“I knew from September 18, 2001, that the official story about 9/11 was false. ... [A]nomalies poured in rapidly: the hijackers' names appearing in none of the published flight passenger lists, BBC reports of stolen identities of the alleged hijackers or the alleged hijackers being found alive, the obvious demolitions of WTC1, 2, and 7, the lack of identifiable Boeing 757 wreckage at the Pentagon.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20061102204545/http://patriotsquestion911.com/> (Emphasis added.)

Speaking of anomalies let's not overlook the strange aircraft crash in Shanksville, PA.

How could covert planting of explosives have happened?

If the three towers were collapsed with controlled demolition who would have access to place the charges?

According to this report ACE Elevator workers and asbestos removal workers had plenty of opportunity.

“The Pentagon was also under construction just prior to 9/11. Ace Elevator may be the trump card to play, in the deadly game to find out who could have placed explosives in the WTC towers before 9/11. ACE Elevator workers should be investigated for staff who knew more about explosives than elevators.

“LVI Services, the largest asbestos abatement company, based in New York City, was working for years in the World Trade Center. Above the ceiling panels, next to support beams, would be the perfect place to plant explosives under the cover of asbestos removal. LVI removed asbestos from the Pentagon as well, and serves the US Government on controlled demolition projects. The president of LVI has held numerous Top Secret clearance positions with the Department of Defense. He was not questioned before the 9/11 Commission nor was his company mentioned in the 9/11 Reports.

“Conclusion: ACE and LVI workers could work in the shafts all day and night for months (at the core columns), plus above the ceiling panels by night (at the horizontal support beams), planting explosives without detection. There should be a new investigation of 9/11, including these workers.”

Scott Forbes, a Senior Database Administrator for Fiduciary Trust, worked on the 97th floor of WTC 2. He worked the weekend prior to 9/11. Why?

“I guess what was odd about this weekend was that all power was going down, then all of our systems were being shutdown. This was extreme and unprecedented.”

Forbes went on to explain:

“We had a backup Generator for our Data Center on floor 97 in the event of an unplanned power outage but it had not been used during my time in the company. You have to understand how unprecedented the power down was. To shut down all of our financial systems, all inter-related and with connections and feeds to many outside vendors and suppliers was a major piece of work. Additionally, the power outage meant that many of the 'ordinary' building features were not operating, such as security locks on doors, cameras, lighting, etc.”

When asked if anything suspicious was taking place that weekend Forbes responded:

“Well, there were several guys in overalls, carrying building gear, toolboxes, etc. inside the building. Remember there were no security locks on doors or security cameras, so access was free unless a door was locked by a manual key. Seeing so many 'strangers' who didn't work at the WTC was unusual.”

FOREKNOWLEDGE

How many people are aware that in the wake of 9/11, many governments opened up investigations into possible insider trading related to the terrorist attacks of that day?

<https://www.advisoryhq.com/articles/best-futures-brokers-for-futures-trading-ranking-reviews-and-ratings/>

According to a 2010 article in the Foreign Policy Journal, “Investigations were initiated by the governments of Belgium, Cyprus, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Monte Carlo, the Netherlands, Switzerland, the United States, and others. Although the investigators were clearly concerned about insider trading, and considerable evidence did exist, none of the investigations resulted in a single indictment.”

An ABC News Consultant, Jonathan Winer, said, “it’s absolutely unprecedented to see cases of insider trading covering the entire world from Japan to the US to North America to Europe.”

CBS reported a sharp upsurge in purchases of put options on both United and American Airlines. A put option is a contract that allows the holder to sell a stock at a set price during a specified time period, which can reap huge profits should the stock plummet.

The Chicago Board Options Exchange, the world's largest options market, was soon investigating reports of unusual trading activity prior to the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington.

“In the days before the attacks, unusually high numbers of put options were purchased for the stocks of AMR Corp. and UAL Corp., the parent companies of American Airlines and United Airlines, which each had two planes hijacked. There was no such trend involving other carriers,” according to the Associated Press.

A September 18, 2001 article published in London Times titled, INSIDER TRADING APPARENTLY BASED ON FOREKNOWLEDGE OF 9/11 ATTACKS, describes how an analyst at Teather & Greenwood noted that on the Friday before the attacks “more than 10 million shares in Merrill Lynch, the US investment bank, were sold compared with 4 million on a normal day.”

The analyst, Richard Crossley, believes that someone with inside knowledge of the attacks could have been making money on its expected outcome before the terrorists struck. "What is more awful than he should aim a stiletto blow at the heart of Western financial markets? But to profit from it. Words fail me.' Mr. Crossley said.”

An article from the Miami Herald detailed how Bundesbank chief Ernst Welteke claimed that German regulators and bank researchers showed there were highly suspicious sales of shares in airlines and insurance companies, along with major trades in gold and oil markets, before Sept. 11 that suggest they were conducted with advance knowledge of the attacks.

<https://web.archive.org/web/20011109160700/www.miami.com/herald/special/news/worldtrade/digdocs/099922.htm>

In a September 24, 2001 press release the Bundesbank retracted many of Welteke's remarks.

An FBI Memorandum from August 18, 2003 concluded that they were unable to find sufficient evidence to prosecute individuals who profited from trading with advance knowledge of the attacks:

“The agents present stated that at present there is no open investigation related to the trading issue and that no case was ever referred for prosecution. As far as the FBI is concerned, there was no evidence ever found of any trading with advanced knowledge of the 9/11 attacks.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20130310131223/https://media.nara.gov/9-11/MFR/t-0148-911MFR-00269.pdf>

Really? Let's use one example to expose the incredulity of that claim by focusing on computer hard-drives that were recovered after the collapse of the WTC buildings. Given that so much of the buildings were pulverized to dust it is stunning that computer hard-drives survived the massive damage. But did they really? Well not according to the FBI, specifically the August 18, 2003 FBI Memorandum which states:

“The assembled agents expressed no knowledge of the reported hard-drive recovery effort or the alleged scheme. Moreover, one of the New York agents pointed out, from personal experience, that everything at the WTC was pulverized to near power (sic), making it extremely unlikely that any hard-drives survived to the extent they data be recovered.”

<https://web.archive.org/web/20130310131223/https://media.nara.gov/9-11/MFR/t-0148-911MFR-00269.pdf>

Two block-buster surprises: (1) Many computer hard-drives did survive and (2) according to a December 16, 2001 Reuters article, a German company, Convar, using their pioneer laser scanning technology was able to recover a surprising amount of data!

German Firm Probes Final World Trade Center Deals was the title of the Reuters article:

"The suspicion is that inside information about the attack was used to send financial transaction commands and authorizations in the belief that amid all the chaos the criminals would have, at the very least, a good head start,' said Convar director Peter Henschel."

The Reuters article goes on to say that, "Not only the volume but the size of the transactions was far higher than usual for a day like that. There is a suspicion that these were possibly planned to take advantage of the chaos."

The article concludes with, "I'm sure that one day they will know what happened to the money."

https://911research.wtc7.net/cache/sept11/reuters\_wtc\_drives.html

Obviously, the FBI Memorandum drafted in August 2003 was not particularly forthcoming since it reported that the FBI and the 911 Commission had no knowledge of any of this. Incidentally, WHAT DID HAPPEN TO THE MONEY??

The CIA and Saudi Arabia, the Bushes and the Bin Ladens. Did their connections cause America to turn a blind eye to terrorism?

In order to appreciate the dynamic its important to understand that powerful factions of the United States government long desired to keep the pro-American Saudi royal family in control of the world's biggest oil spigot, even at the price of turning a blind eye to any terrorist connection so long as America was safe. Once oil fracking was achieved on a large scale the United States was no longer dependent on Saudi Arabia or anyone else in the world for oil. For the first time in 75 years the United States produced enough oil not only to satisfy its domestic needs but became an oil exporter.

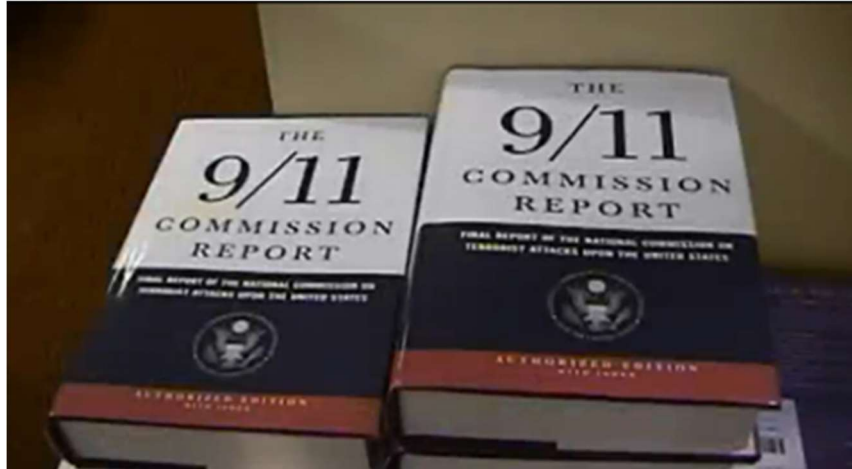

<https://oilprice.com/Energy/Crude-Oil/US-Becomes-Net-Oil-Exporter-For-First-Time-In-75-Years.html>

All of that changed once Biden took over the White House.

An article from the BBC states, “In the eight weeks since the attacks, over 1,000 suspects and potential witnesses have been detained. Yet, just days after the hijackers took off from Boston aiming for the Twin Towers, a special charter flight out of the same airport whisked 11 members of Osama Bin Laden's family off to Saudi Arabia. That did not concern the [Bush] White House.”

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/events/newsnight/1645527.stm>

What about the 9/11 Commission? Wasn't it supposed to get to the bottom of the 9/11 events? Although highly touted, it was in fact a farcical charade.
